Excerpt: . . . he would settle the case for such payment, it was unlawful, no matter where the proposition for a settlement came from. If he took the money it was unlawful as he had no right to settle cases between parties. Under the evidence for the defense he is guilty. The motion was overruled and the defendant excepted. M1zL1mm and ADAMS, by G. A. HOWELL, for plaintiff in error. A. R. LAMAR, solicitor general, by W. G. OHiuurroN, for the state. BL1zCKL1i: Y, Judge. 1. The head-notes rule the law of this case, as we understand it. If the defendant was an officer de jure or de facto he could commit extortion; but not if he was a mere guard or constables attendant. The test of whether he was an officer or not is, whether he was in a situation to make a legal arrest on that particular warrant in the absence and without the co-operation of F redericks, the sw0rn special constable. That is a question partly of law and partly of fact; and the court should have so dealt with it. 2. Even if he was an oficer, the transaction was not extortion if he took the money in good faith, without any claim to it, and with a bonafide purpose to use it in accordance with Sheppards wish, in settling the prosecution. The reception of the money may have been improper for such a purpose, but even if it was criminal, the offense committed...
